Contents

NUMBER 1—JUNE, 1961

PAGE

"The Absorbing Tyranny of Every-day Life": Bulwer-Lytton's A Strange Story, by Joseph I. Fradin 1

Middlemarch: Narrative Unity in the Story of Dorothea Brooke, by John Hagan 17

What Maisie Knew: the Evolution of a "Moral Sense," by James W. Gargano 33

Felix Holt as Classic Tragedy, by Fred C. Thomson 47

Thematic Patterns in Stephen Crane's Early Novels, by Thomas A. Gullason 59

The Education of Emma Woodhouse, by R. E. Hughes . . . 69

The Essential Jim, by Ann M. Gossman and George W. Whiting 75

Notes and Reviews 81

The Devil in Samburan: Jones and Ricardo in Victory, by Seymour L. Gross

Review: J. A. Ward, The Imagination of Disaster: Evil in the Fiction of Henry James, by Lyall H. Powers

Review: John Paterson, The Making of "The Return of the Native," by Robert C. Slack

Review: Edward Wagenknecht, Nathaniel Hawthorne: Man and Writer, by Richard Harter Fogle

Review: The Letters of Herman Melville, edited by Davis and Gilman, by Leon Howard

Current Books

NUMBER 2—SEPTEMBER, 1961

Point of View and the Control of Distance in Emma, by Wayne C. Booth 95

Beauchamp's Career: An English Ordeal, by Frederick R. Karl . 117

Devils Abroad: The Unity and Significance of Barnaby Rudge, by James K. Gottshall 133

A Note on the Significance of Diggory Venn, by John Hagan . 147

Notes and Reviews 157

Becky Sharp and Lord Steyne—Thackeray or Disraeli? by D. J. Greene

The Red Haired Lady Orator: Parallel Passages in The Bostonians and Adam Bede, by Robert L. Selig

The Old Folks of McTeague, by William B. Dillingham

Roderick Usher's Overrated Knowledge, by K. L. Goodwin

Melville's "Bartleby" and the Absurd, by Robert Donald Spector

Another Key Word for Jane Eyre, by Charles Burkhart

Review: Norman Kelvin, A Troubled Eden, by Lionel Stevenson

Review: Robert Lee Wolff, The Golden Key, by R. H. Reis
Review: Daphne du Maurier, The Infernal World of Branwell Brontë, by Mildred G. Christian
Current Books

NUMBER 3—DECEMBER, 1961

The House of the Seven Gables: The Religion of Love, by Alfred J. Levy 189
The Literary Children of James and Clemens, by Tony Tanner 205
Seasonal Relevance in The Pickwick Papers, by David M. Bevington 219
The Bethrothal of George Meredith to Marie Vulliamy, by C. L. Cline 231
James's and Lubbock's Differing Points of View, by Sister Kristin Morrison 245
Notes and Reviews 257
Point of View and Structure in The Heart of Midlothian, by William H. Marshall
Late Nineteenth-Century American Realism: An Essay in Definition, by Donald Pizer
Mansfield Park and Ordination, by Charles E. Edge
A Major Thematic Pattern in Pride and Prejudice, by Mordecai Marcus
The Walter Scott Episode in Huckleberry Finn, by Lyle H. Kendall, Jr.
Current Books

NUMBER 4—MARCH, 1962

A Beleaguered City: A Fable for the Victorian Age, by Robert and Vineta Colby 283
Ironic and Symbolic Structure in Crane's Maggie, by Joseph X. Brennan 303
George Meredith as Novelist, by Donald Fanger 317
The Confidence-Man and the Literary World of New York, by Paul Smith 329
Pragmatic Realism in The Bostonians, by William McMurray . 339
Notes and Reviews 345
Benito Cereno and the Spanish Inquisition, by John Bernstein
Review: Daniel G. Hoffman, Form and Fable in American Fiction, by Richard W. B. Lewis
Review: Andrew Block, The English Novel, 1740-1850, by Robert A. Colby
Review: Louis F. Peck, A Life of Matthew G. Lewis, by James R. Foster
Review: Wayne Burns, Charles Reade, by Royal A. Gettmann
Review: Albert E. Stone, Jr., The Innocent Eye, and Roger B. Salomon, Twain and the Image of History, by John F. Ross
Review: Royal A. Gettmann, George Gissing and H. G. Wells, by Arthur C. Young
Current Books